Thank You from Seattle Parrot Expo 2024

Thank you one and all for keeping SPE afloat. There are so many ways your donations impact everything FCF does. Throughout the year. Did this year seem to go by especially fast to anyone else besides me? I swear, I just took the Christmas Tree down 3 months ago, and here I am planning my Halloween get-up already. Maybe it's simply because FCF has been so stupidly busy this year.

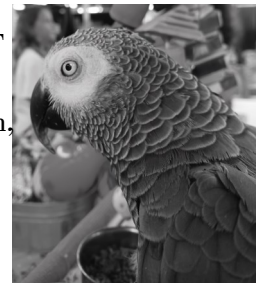

So many events - places to go, people to teach, booths to set up and tear down. Birds to haul around... and boy, did we put some mileage on the vehicles in 2024. One was the little excursion to L.A. 6 days, 4 people, 2 vehicles, 11 birds; over 3000 miles, through 107° heat, 100+ miles stuck in excruciatingly slow traffic, and one near catastrophe when a semi just ran me off the highway and into the median. It wasn't my life that flashed though my mind but these immortal words, "Not with other people's birds in my car, you "BLEEEEP!". My heart didn't stop pounding for half an hour. I don't know how, but my passenger slept through it all. Even weird-er? Debbie, ahead of me, didn't even see the dust cloud. The jeep behind me, however, backed off so fast and so far, he was a dot on the horizon. No dummy there.

At least I didn't have to spend 4 months out of '24 speeding back and forth to Pine Tree Vet this year. And yes, Max, my old curmudgeon Grey is doing pretty darn well without any front toes on one foot. He still slips off his perch a lot and any big bumps while driving can send him flapping (and giving me the evil eye); but he's so dang smart that when I tell him to hang on, he grabs a cage bar and does just that. I'm just glad he's still with me. So, on to the many thanks we owe. Thank you, repeat, repeat - for any support you may have given Flight Club Foundation. Any hours of volunteer work you may have provided. Time, energy, money, support, trucks, labor, purchases, hugs... anything that someone may have given to us, or done for us, in 2024.

We. Thank. You.

It goes without saying that I always forget someone or something; and my deepest apologies if I have!

Collaborative Consultation with Cassie
VALUE: $540.00

Cassie Malina of Awesome Animal Solutions is donating 3 hours of 1:1 consultation to help you with your parrot. This is a chance of a lifetime to receive top, professional help with your overall bird training goals. The value we are opening at is a steal!

Brand-new Zoomed Terrarium Set up! Value $300

Zoomed donated this amazing terrarium at the last PACNWRS event we saw them in July! Comes with A halide focus light, compact florescent, dry desert motif and fogger! Dimensions: 18" wide x18" deep x 24" high.

Aronico canopy net—Value $180.00

Aronico donated this amazing, one inch thick 4x8 net for our 2024 auction. This net nearly always has an auction war to win every year. It's worth the year of fun it will give your bird.

Thank you 32auctions.com!

Parrot Grant 2024

Flight Club Foundation works hard annually to produce many programs that help Parrots and People too. Flight Club Foundation specializes as a parrot adoption, recovery, rehab, owner-centered training and triage organization (or PARROTT program). Grants, membership, store purchase, online auctions and more provide our ability to give back to other deserving nonprofits. If we succeed in raising funds above costs at Seattle Parrot Expo every year, we issue what we call a Parrot Grant annually. To date, we have given $14,000 of our own funds vs. donor funds to over a dozen nonprofits globally.

One Earth Conservation's work is grounded in the acknowledgment of a system of exploitation and domination which harms and oppresses many forms of life. Parrots and the humans they share land with suffer at the intersection of multiple harms which indicate a society in need of restructuring around the following principles:

- All individuals of all species have inherent worth and dignity. All are connected to each other in worth, beauty and well-being.
- We are also connected in harm. What is done to one is done to all of us. Villains are in turn victims. None are free until all are free.
- Humans are adaptable and can change, both individually and as families, organizations, communities, and societies.
- Humans need each other and other species to grow and heal. We can grow through embracing our belonging to earth and the life upon it. We can nurture nature in return.

FLIGHT CLUB FOUNDATION

Welcome from the President

Welcome to Seattle Parrot Expo 2024, "Discover our Northwest Roots"!

What a year it's been! Each year, Flight Club Foundation works hard to share knowledge about the world of parrots and everything connected to them. Each year, we celebrate all that we do in one, massive, epic performance of my life, Seattle Parrot Expo. A dream I had now over 20 years ago as I worked at Rainforest Cafe. An idea that grows and evolves into the refined beauty of reality.

This year has been a challenge for everyone. The economic monolith sucking the minor resources any of us have to live much less pay serious debts like unforeseen medical bills, animal care costs and more. I lost my first parrot to a fly off ever little Quetzal the Canary Wing Parakeet.

Losses have been coming in all sizes and shapes this year. A recent case we are currently negotiating is a woman who lost everything to a roommate that took advantage of her. When we evaluated her situation, we realized had no idea her birds' conditions were hurting them. She could not afford a vet. We could not, either, but one bird, Sam, simply could not wait. Both are doing far better under managed care. We are staying in touch regarding their future and hope it will be bright.

Our wings embrace so many as we hugged Jay who lost his wife to uterine cancer giving Scarlett the lilac crowned she owned. Scarlett now lives happily with 2 other amazons and is joining us as a Superbird! We said goodbye to James, who owned Scarlet the Macaw we rescued from trees two years prior. Pablo, the best canary-winged parakeet I ever met, valiantly played until her last moment when her adopter, who knew she was having liver issues we were treating, had massive lymphoma.

My vision for Flight Club Foundation is large, but must be taken one step at a time. During this turbulent time, those steps are far smaller than ever before, but I still believe they are possible. Goals being things like having an actual space that is a true humane society solely for exotics.

Imagine having a resource refuge for exotic animals that consists of a network of breeders, rescuers, store owners, manufacturers, veterinarians, parrot owners, zoos, conservationists, sanctuaries all in league to help parrots. What I like to call, "the complete wheel without which there is no forward motion".

Most of us do this work voluntarily. It takes a massive volunteer base to even consider the steps we have taken so far. A volunteer base that receives calls in the middle of the night for bird crises, that climbs trees to recover birds for strangers, that consoles a partner who loses his wife to cancer, that brings on a behavioral challenge in hopes of success.

We do not ask for donations to adopt parrots out. We just ask for stability, a membership, a follow up, loyalty. It's your contributions at Seattle Parrot Expo and annual fundraising that allows us to do all that we do for so many projects, events, and conservation donations we do.

This is my motto I state at the end of every show I perform, "Save a Parrot Today, Save YOURSELF Tomorrow!" Remember the Roots that create our foundation. The roots that hold us all strong together.

Enjoy the show!

IT'S ALL ABOUT THE BREATH:

The Story of Air and How it Shaped Our Birds

Daniel Sigmon is a published author on Avian topics. He has spoken nationally and internationally about birds and Reconciliation Ecology.

He is a certified Aviculturist Level II, as well as a member of AFA, ASA, ECA, IPS, and the Texas Ornithological Society. Danny has long been associated with the National Parrot Rescue and Preservation Foundation, where he coordinated the Parrot Festival, from 2016 to 2020; currently serving his third non-consecutive term as a member of the Board of Directors. In his professional life, Mr. Sigmon is an award-winning composer of music for choir, soloists, orchestra, chamber ensemble, and organ. He has composed three one-act operas, and one full-length opera; all which have all been produced. He is a consummate performer; actor, singer and conductor. In 2019, Mr. Sigmon was honored to be a semifinalist for the American Prize in Music.

Jack Pine

WORKSHOP: BIRDIE BASICS

Jack Pine is a professional animal caretaker, as well as the creator of the Hi Red Bird! YouTube Channel. Jack has spent his professional career working with a wide variety of animals; everything from budgies to elephants, utilizing a vast array of animal care approaches.

The Hi Red Bird! YouTube channel Jack created is a culmination of all the tips and tricks he has honed over the years. With a particular emphasis on enrichment and training. He hopes to help other animal lovers develop the skills needed to make the keeping of pets and exotic animals more exciting, more affordable, and ultimately more enjoyable.

Dr. EV Voltura, Phd

WORKSHOP: HOW PARROT NUTRITION AND CONSERVATION WORK HAND IN

Dr. EV Voltura has had a keen interest in birds, especially parrots, since she was about 10 years; and has pursued the study of them for most of her life. EV graduated from Texas A&M University (TAMU) with a Ph.D. in Biomedical Sciences (Veterinary Pathobiology Department) in 2022. Her doctoral work focused on the health and conservation of parrots; with a strong focus on nutrition and the dietary habits, of both wild and captive parrots. EV is currently working as a Post doctoral Research Associate at the Schubot Center for Avian Health at TAMU. In this position, she leads new studies related to parrot health and nutrition. She and her partner are the guardians of 9 parrots, 3 macaws, 4 caiques, 2 lorries, 2 cats and 2 horses. As well as a tripod Irish Wolfhound.

Debbie Goodrich

Debbie Goodrich is a Certified Parrot Behavior Consultant and Professional Bird Trainer who performs with her parrots throughout Western Washington. She and her birds have been featured on the Bob Rivers Show, New Day Northwest and now a regular at the SW Washington Fair! Her message of conservation and hope for the future through parrots gave her the inspiration to help create Flight Club Foundation, a 501 c3, humane organization, that assists parrots and people alike. She will be perform-
